EFFECTS OF THE RECENT RAINS. Special to the Star.

ZANESVILLE, OHIO, August 3.--The streams here are high and rising. Three bridges between here and Taylorville are swept away, and also two others in the northern part of the county. Grain and grass are badly damaged. A bridge on the C. & M. V. railroad at Roseville was damaged, and travel suspended. Trains are still running on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

ATHENS, Aug. 3.--The Hocking river has risen steadily since Saturday, and is higher than ever known. Great destruction of property and crops. No trains on this end of the Hocking Valley road since Saturday.

LIMA, O., August 3.--From last Saturday at 10 o'clock up to last evening it has rained here with but little intermission. Crops have suffered severely on the low lands. Wheat in shocks has been washed away, and thousands of acres of corn and oats are under water. The Ottawa river is higher than for several years. Railroads go under.

DAYTON, O., August 3.--The Miami and Mad rivers, which continued to rise during yesterday and the day before, are now on a stand. The levees around the city are as yet all right, except had leaks at a few points. The main-street bridge, which is damaged, is still in place, protected by heavy stone placed there to break the current.

The D. & M. R. bridge is regarded in danger, and has been weighted down by a train of heavily loaded freight cars. Reports from the country tell of widespread damage and destruction of crops. No loss of life so far.

COLUMBUS, O., August 3.--At midnight last night the Scioto river left its bed and broke madly over a tract of ground south of the city, burying extensive corn fields ten feet deep. The water rose to the first story of several houses occupied by the workmen and their families of the brickyard close by, but all were saved.

AURORA, IND., August 3.--At this point the river broke but a few inches of the highest water mark, and is still rising. The crops in the bottom land are all under water. The back water in the creeks will damage thousands of acres not reached. The loss of corn on Laughrey creek alone previous to this last rise, was estimated at 75,000 bushels. The figure will now be doubled.

DELAWARE, Aug. 3.--Rain fell all day yesterday. River high.

MORROW, Aug. 3.--Another flood of great magnitude here. The river has swept fences and grain away--doing untold damage.

TIPPECANOE, O., Aug. 3.--The Miami river at this place has broken through the levees, carrying away a great deal of grain, and damaging a great deal of corn.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., August 3.--The recent heavy rains, accompanied by strong winds, has greatly damaged oats and corn. Low ground wheat ruined.

GALION, O., August 3.--The storms for the last month have ruined the prospects of heavy harvests in Crawford and adjoining counties.

LANCASTER, O., August 3.--The Hocking river has burst its banks west of the city, and completely submerged the valley. Bridges are washed away, and damage generally done.

VALLEY JUNCTION, O., Aug. 3.--The flood attained its height at 10 o'clock last night, and at this writing, 1 A. M., has receded ten inches. The outlook for the wide expanse of the Miami and Whitewater bottoms inundated, indicates great damage to the corn. Thousands of acres will be seriously felt by landlords and tenants, especially the latter, whose toil promised an abundant and remunerative crop. The full extent of the damages will not be known until the flood abates. The backwater of the Ohio will prevent the rapid decrease of the water now submerging the corn and increasing the damage.

Doings at Washington.

Treasury Department--Weather Notes, Etc., Etc.

WASHINGTON, August 3.--Secretary Bristow is expected to arrive here tomorrow, when the trouble about the appointments in the Treasury's Office will be laid before him and an effort made to secure to Mr. New the privilege of selecting the appointees in the most important positions in his office. The Treasury still insists that these are the only terms on which he will remain in the position.

The rainy weather has now fairly set in here. Up to ten days ago the weather here, especially in the eastern part of Maryland, continued very dry and grass and many of the crops were seriously suffering for rain. Since the wet weather set in, however, it has rained almost every day, though there have been no heavy storms.

THE KENTUCKY ELECTION.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 3.--The election yesterday passed off quietly. A large vote was polled in this city. Democratic majority 2,524. A Republican gain of 700. Harlan, who lives here, ran ahead of his ticket. The vote for Governor in this city is: Harlan, 17,197; McCreary, 9,708. Outside returns come in slowly.

Democratic majority in Simpson county, 1,800; in Franklin county, 860; Madison county, McCreary's home, 250; Mason county, 700; Barren county, 277; Logan county, 67; Hart county, large Democratic majority; Lincoln county, usual majority; Montgomery county, 200. Gen. John S. Williams voted for McCreary. Nelson county, Democratic gain small. Rockcastle county majority, 110; Oldham county, large Democratic majority.

The returns are so scattering that it is impossible to give an estimate. Calvin Allred was elected Marshal of the Louisville Chancery Court.

Bowling Green gives 255 Democratic gain. Paducah gives the Democratic gain, 138 majority--a gain of 210. So far as heard from the majorities for the Democratic ticket throughout the State are largely increased over the vote for Leslie, Democrat, in 1871. So few towns in Kentucky, comparatively, can be reached by telegraph that authentic returns from the majority of counties cannot be obtained for several days.

PARIS, August 3.--Lockhart, Democratic candidate for the Legislature, is elected by 250 majority. The State ticket will receive a corresponding majority. No definite returns from the country.

FRANKFORT, Aug. 3.--The election here passed off quietly. In this county (Franklin) McCreary, Democratic candidate for Governor, has a majority over Harlan of near 600--a small Democratic gain. Craddock, Democratic candidate for Representative, has a majority of over 450. The indications are that the Democratic majority in the State will be 45,000--a gain of 5,000 over Leslie in 1871.

A Strange Solution of a Mystery.

The following, taken from the Selma, Alabama, Times, of June 22, is attracting much attention in New Orleans:

"In the year 1840 Mr. Harmon Jones, a citizen of New Orleans, caught the California gold fever and embarked on a ship for the Pacific Ocean. He had a wife and two children, for whom he made ample provision but he could be heard from in his new home. The vessel he sailed on was never heard from after leaving port, and after years of waiting his family gave him up as lost. His wife declined several eligible offers of marriage and remained true to her husband. The children are grown, and live on an island in New Orleans. A part of Mr. Jones' history he told in the following paragraph from a letter received yesterday by our friend, Mr. Cornelius Young, from a sister in New Orleans. The writer says: 'The most remarkable piece of news we have heard for a long time is that Mr. Harmon Jones is alive on the Pacific Ocean. An acquaintance of Mrs. Jones saw an account in an English paper of the discovery of an unknown island by the Pacific Ocean. It mentioned the names of the persons found upon the island, and among the number was Harmon Jones, of New Orleans. The number of years he has been on the island corresponds exactly with the number of years he has been lost. They refused to leave the island, as they said the ties binding them to their former homes were probably broken, and they did not like to leave on an uncertainty. His family have seen the British Consul, and steps are being taken for his recovery.'

"I am deeply interested in the discovery of Mr. Harmon Jones, as my father, John A. Sidney, was one of Mr. Jones' shipmates. In July, 1840, about fifteen or twenty citizens of New Orleans, having the California gold fever--among the number were Mr. Harmon Jones, John A. Sidney, Kimeo, a Mr. Kennedy, a Mr. Hoey, and a Mr. Bogart--clubbed together and purchased the schooner Florida to go to California via Cape Horn. They sailed from New Orleans about the 12th or 14th of July, 1840. The vessel was under the command of Capt. Kimeo. She was spoken to, the last time, off the coast of Patagonia, in the Atlantic Ocean. After that she was never heard from, and the presumption has been ever since that the vessel and her crew were wrecked in rounding Cape Horn, or else that the vessel was attacked by the natives of Patagonia and the whole crew captured and made prisoners.

"As that article in this morning's Picayune is the first news of any kind that has been heard for twenty-six years from any of the crew of the ill-fated Florida, it will create a sensation and re-ignite the spark of hope in the breasts of the families and relatives of Mr. Jones and his unfortunate companions. If that English newspaper could be had it would gladden the hearts of many to see a full account of the affair, and a list of the names of those found on that island, as they, if living, all have families, relatives, or friends living here in New Orleans."

SUICIDE.

A Man Bangs Himself in a Wardrobe.

A most determined suicide occurred this morning at a house at No. 608 Vine street, near Green, occupied as a repair shop for musical instruments. The victim is the proprietor of the place, named J. Scher--a German about 37 years of age. He was a man of a very stern and determined aspect, and said to have been of very intemperate habits. The body was found this morning about 7 o'clock by a little boy who entered the place on business. Lieutenant Ridgeway, of Bremen street Station-house, was informed of the affair, and when he came he discovered the body hanging in a crouched up position in a wardrobe situated in the rear apartment of the store.

The wardrobe is an ordinary sized piece of furniture of that description about 5 feet 8 inches in height, and the apartment where the body is found is furnished with a shelf with books upon it, and from the shelf to the bottom measures about three feet. The unfortunate suicide is a man of about 5 feet 6 inches in height, and in order to accomplish his rash act had to crouch himself into the wardrobe. From appearances it seemed that he first knelt down on the bottom of the wardrobe, and then with a piece of string rope fastened the noose to his neck, and attaching the rope to one of the hooks in the shelf, raised his legs so as not to touch the bottom, and thus accomplished his purpose.

The body was still warm when it was cut down, from which the suicide must have occurred at dawn this morning. The cause of the suicide is alleged to be family troubles.

Scher and his wife for some time have been separated, and last night some parties went to reconcile the two, but the wife refused, which is assigned as the immediate cause of the suicide. In the neighborhood Scher was also thought to be partially insane.

Coroner Maley was notified and held an inquest this morning, but nothing beside the above facts were elicited. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the circumstances.

THE DYER CASE.

The Defendant Bonaud Over to Await the Action of the Grand Jury.

The testimony for the defense in the Dyer case was proceeded with before J. S. Commissioner Hooper this morning. The evidence taken yesterday evening after our going to press will be found in our Court Cullings. L. E. Parker, recalled by Col. Boud for the defense, testified as follows: I have known J. T. Porter three years intimately. I have heard of a man named Travis. Have conversed with Porter about him. Some time last month Porter said: 'I came back to do something for you. If you work this case right, it will be your starting point.'

He referred to the Travis case. He took me to a saloon on Third street. In there he said that I should come with him and he would show me Travis; that Mayor Johnston and all the police were anxious to put Travis in the hole, and that he, Travis, it was said to come to 63 West Sixth street, and if we met Travis he would shake hands with him.

We did not see him, but Porter told me to go to 63 West Sixth street, or wherever he could find him. He handed me a parcel to take to Travis, and to say to him here is a package, a man on Race street sent it to him. I was to tip my hat as a regard for Porter, who said he would then come up and arrest him and put him in the hole. I asked him if counterfeiting money was in the package, and he said it was none of my business.

At this point the testimony closed. Col. Bonaud then, on behalf of the defense, said he would waive further examination and enter into any recognition the Court might require. The bond was then fixed by the Court in the sum of $1,000 for the appearance of J. E. Dyer to await the action of the Grand Jury. Messrs. Richards and Dyer (no relative of the defendant) appear for the Government, and L. H. Bond for the defendant.
